“What is the new normal?” as your organization comes out of quarantine? Some leaders are looking at how they can help their employees cope with changing times. Resilient Leadership looks instead at how their company was transformed during the quarantine, and how they can pull these experiences out to develop something innovative and meaningful. Join us with three dynamic executives who are leading and working in organizations that exemplify resilient leadership.

This virtual program is the first in a series of Executive Leadership Webinars (to be held quarterly) that will spotlight key executives discussing relevant and pressing topics that impact organizations.
