Join us on December 2, 2021, for our Executive Leadership Forum Session entitled C-Suite Partnering with Board Members = Dynamic Success

Achieving that healthy tension in the boardroom—where the board is advising the CEO and management team while maintaining objectivity, independence, and skepticism—has always been a challenge. Yet, the mounting complexity of the current business environment has placed tremendous pressure on boards and CEOs to deliver results. Rapid technological change and business model disruption, economic and geopolitical uncertainty, and investor demands to hold leaders and boards more accountable for performance all place possible strains on the board-CEO relationship. This intensifying external pressure raises the odds of adversarial dynamics between CEOs and directors, leaving many CEOs feeling unsupported and misunderstood.

Join us on December 2, 2021 as we discuss how boards and company leaders can effectively navigate this relationship to maximize corporate performance.

You'll learn how to:

- Set clear expectations that the board's role extends beyond compliance and oversight and that it includes serving as a resource for the CEO.
- Create transparency to build trust and confidence between the board and the management team.
- Develop seamless communication channels to find the right level of board engagement on such issues as strategy, risk management, talent, management succession, and the culture throughout the organization.
- Use executive sessions to identify issues and concerns that other directors may not feel comfortable sharing with the CEO during board meetings.

Panel Presenters

Al Rajwani

Board Member for BioBridge Global and Texas Biomedical Research Institute

Al Rajwani brings to bear his extensive global experience with Procter & Gamble in serving as a Director on 2 non-profit boards in San Antonio. Currently Al is serving on the boards of Texas Biomedical Research Institute and BioBridge Global. Al is a past board member of the Advertising Standards Council of India and Vice Chairman of the American Chamber of Commerce in Korea.

During his 37-year tenure with Procter and Gamble, Al worked in several business units and geographies. He started with P&G in 1981 after graduating with a BSC in Chemical Engineering from the University of Calgary. During the first 18 years of his career, Al worked in North America including 7 years at P&G's HQ in Cincinnati. Over the final 19 years of his career Al served as the Managing Director of Taiwan, Korea, the Arabian Peninsula/Pakistan and lastly in South Asia whereby he had responsibility for India, Bangladesh, Nepal and Sri Lanka.

Al pioneered the concept of BOF i.e. Brutal Obsession with Fundaments in managing these business units. Some notable achievements were a major profit turnaround in India while maintaining strong topline growth. A key part of the profit turnaround strategy was "winning from the top" i.e. targeting 1/1+ Indian consumer's with premium brands/tiers. In the Arabian Peninsula, Al had the distinction of delivering highly profitable double digit topline growth over a span of 12 years coupled with Best-in-Class market share levels.

During his long and distinguished P&G career Al built a strong reputation as a "people person". This translated into building strong organizations coupled with very successful talent development. Another key part of Al success was in deeply understanding consumer/shopper needs and developing Win-Win partnerships with all key stakeholders i.e. Customers, Distributors, Govt Entities, Agencies etc. A notable achievement was being recognized for delivering a Best-in-Class integration of the huge and complex Gillette acquisition.

Al is highly committed to Diversity and Inclusion which is a key priority for P&G. Al has the distinction of getting license #1 to hire females in Saudi Arabia in 2005. This had a major societal impact as many other companies followed P&G's lead. Al championed an "All-Female" built house in Korea for Habitat for Humanity and developed several successful female leaders including the past 2 managing directors in Korea.

After retiring from P&G, Al and his wife Nimet chose to relocate to San Antonio. The laidback life and diversity of the city attracted them to be a part of the 7th largest city in the US. After arriving in San Antonio Al was an active participant in class XVI of the Master's Leadership program which is focused on exposing senior executives to all aspects of the strengths and challenges of the community in San Antonio. Al is fully committed to living up to MLP Class XVI's motto of "From Success to Significance". Serving on 2 Non-Profit Boards is one part of this commitment.
